Roberto Kolter, Ph.D.	Professor of Microbiology
TRAINING
Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, PA	B.S.	1975	Biology
University of California, San Diego, CA	Ph.D.	1979	Biology
Stanford University, Stanford, CA	Post-doc	1980-1982	Biology

Since my initial appointment as Assistant Professor at Harvard Medical School in 1983, I have been deeply involved in research and education. More than 120 individuals trained in my laboratory during the ensuing 34 years and most of those trainees have followed careers in science in both academic and industry settings. Research in the Kolter Lab has always gravitated around the study of microbes. We have explored a large number of different subjects ranging from basic bacterial physiology to bioactive compound discovery. Soon I will close the laboratory and transition to Professor Emeritus. I will continue my involvement in science through teaching, writing and blogging in Small Things Considered.
